Health and Human Services

A STEP in the right direction

The County of San Mateo's innovative employment program for emancipated foster youth which pairs them with coaches in a County department is being honored with a 2019 Agency Award for Excellence from a statewide human resources organization. The Supported Training and Employment Program (STEP) provides recently emancipated foster ages 18 to 24 with coaching and paid work experience to ensure their success and financial stability. The award for STEP recognizes the San Mateo County Human Resources Department for a program that exceeds expectations and goes beyond the normal standards of a good government human resources program, according to CalGovHR, the HR professional organization bestowing the honor. San Mateo County Human Resources will accept the award at the CalGovHR conference this month. STEP was also honored in 2017 with a Challenge Award from the California State Association of Counties.

Census team planning for community launch

The 2020 Census will be here before we know it and to kick off the countdown from one year out, the Office of Community Affairs is hosting “Everyone Counts: Census 2020 Community Launch” on April 1, 2019. The free event at the Fox Forum in Redwood City is an opportunity to gather community leaders from nonprofit, civic, government and community organizations that can serve as Census 2020 champions and trusted messengers among our diverse residents. Attendees will hear from a variety of speakers sharing what is at stake, how everyone can make a difference and how to fund local outreach efforts. The 2020 Census is our once-in-a-decade chance to make sure the County and its residents receive equitable political representation and fair funding allocations for critical services.

San Mateo County Wetlands Vulnerability Study released

In partnership with the County’s Office of Sustainability and the California State Coastal Conservancy, California-based nonprofit Point Blue Conservation Science recently released the Final Technical Report for the San Mateo Wetlands Vulnerability Study. The San Mateo County case study quantitatively evaluates the broader ecosystem functions and services of tidal marshes along the county Baylands and shows services are projected to change with sea level rise. The result is actionable information your Board and other stakeholders can use to prioritize adaptation efforts for the maximum ecological and human community benefit.
